Sacrifices, hardships remembered

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

A smaller-than-average crowd wrapped up warmly for the short walk to Elk Point's cenotaph on Sunday, where bright sun glinted off frost on nearby trees as representatives of governments, organizations and businesses banked the base of the commemorative monument with its usual large crop of poppy-laden wreaths.

All returned to the welcoming warmth of the Seniors' Recreation Centre in time for the traditional 11 a.m. observance, with the dying notes of the Last Post signaling the start of two minutes of silence, with Reveille marking its conclusion.

Master of ceremonies Parrish Tung recited the traditional Act of Remembrance.

Two Elk Point Elementary School students read the Remembrance Day poems, Mackenzie Evans reading Lt. Col. John McCrae's 'In Flanders Fields,' and Shaylyn Klatt the answering, 'We Shall Keep the Faith.'

Tung relayed regrets from CFB Wainwright military personnel, who had been unable to attend, and welcomed Master Warrant Officer Gary James of CFB Cold Lake to the event.

MLA Shane Saskiw also sent his regrets.

Margaret Modin brought greetings from MP Brian Storseth, and read his Remembrance Day message, "remembering the men and women who sacrificed their lives in the fight for freedom, and acknowledging all those who are still fighting. 'Lest We Forget' should be engrained in the hearts and minds of us all, and we must continue to show our respect for all those who gave of themselves four our country."

Coun. Bernice Capjack represented the Town of Elk Point, and noted, "It is special that we teach our children to remember as well." She added that while no veterans from World War I are still alive, "their families are still around," and are helping to keep the memories alive.

"We must remember all who fought. Not enough is being done for those who came home. They should be cared for and honoured while they are still with us, not just after they have left us."

The County of St. Paul was represented by Coun. Glen Ockerman, who said, "On Remembrance Day, we think of the veterans, but we also should think of the families. Kids were separated from their parents who went to war, and today's kids may never know their grandparents or great-grandparents who made the ultimate sacrifice for their country."

Brittany Younghans brought the St. Paul Education Regional Division No. 1 message on behalf of her father, Darrell. "The majority of us have not been personally touched by war, as earlier generations of our families were, but it is up to us to pass the message on down the line. To today's military and police, thank you for continuing to uphold our safety and freedom." A recorded version of 'Abide With Me' preceded the guest speaker, newly arrived Christian Community Church Pastor Don Ford.

Sacrifices remembered

"Today's younger generation is largely untouched by war," he agreed. "It doesn't really touch their daily lives or impact them in the same way. My generation all knew someone who had served in the military, but it's not really a reality (to younger people).

"Jesus said, 'There is no greater love than to lay down your life for your friends,' and the great acts of courage are worth remembering, those who laid down their lives. We remember also for the sake of those who returned, who gave up their jobs, home life and families to serve. Was it worth it? In gratitude, we remember what they have done."

The pastor recalled that as young boys, "We were fascinated by war. We asked our uncle about his experiences, but he never wanted to tell us, except for one story. He and his comrades were bogged down in the trenches in the cold and wet. An old woman in a house nearby sent her grandchildren into the trenches with hot drinks, and when our uncle and his comrades became ill with pneumonia, she took them into her home and nursed them back to health with a foul tasting brew. She saved their lives. That's the story he told."

Pastor Ford urged all to be grateful. "Gratitude elevates society. If we lose gratitude, we become a lesser society."

He also relayed the story of a soldier who was long thought by the army to have died in France because he was careless with a grenade. Some 65 years later, his death was found to have resulted from an act of heroism. He had found children playing with a grenade, and having no time to throw it safely, covered it with his body to save the children. "In France, he was a hero."

In his closing remarks, Tung noted, "It is you who come and participate that make Remembrance Day more meaningful and treasured. Thank you for bringing your children, it is to them we pass the torch of remembrance."

P.U.P in action

By CHEYENNE LAWRENCE AND NICOLE PLUNKIE

F. G. Miller P.U.P

At the beginning of the year the PUP started with an event that was different than anything that we've done before. We had a street party where we had hotdogs, juice and ice cream. To get people to mingle with one another we had a scavenger hunt that a lot of the students participated in. The PUP members also made PUP pamphlets as a way to promote the group and a way to get more students to join. We have a few new members this year which brings our count up to about 25 students.

The week of Halloween we had a school spirit week. On Monday we had Pajama Day, the students and staff wore their favorite pajamas to school. Tuesday we had Geek or Jock Day where students dressed up in either their favorite hockey jersey or like Sheldon Cooper off of the Big Bang Theory.

Wednesday was Halloween and students and staff were dressed up as many different things. Thursday was Day of Night where everybody was to wear all black. Friday was Superhero Day; you could come as a superhero that was already created or make up your own. Every day that you dressed up you could get points for your AR house.

The PUP members were invited to an MS Volunteer Summit with Bill Gordon AKA The Bionic Turkey. This event is open to everyone who is our wants to be a volunteer. The date for this is December 1 in St. Paul. Contact Sherry Bower Gagne at the school for more information.

As a school we did a magazine sales event to raise money for the school breakfast program. Added to the mix was a cookie dough fundraiser to raise money for our causes this year which are hunger, homelessness, and poverty. Keeping with PUP goals the school is in the process of sponsoring a child from the Dominican Republic.

It is November now; this means that it's November. PUP members are making chocolate moustaches that we are going to be selling at lunch time to raise money to help find a cure for prostate cancer.

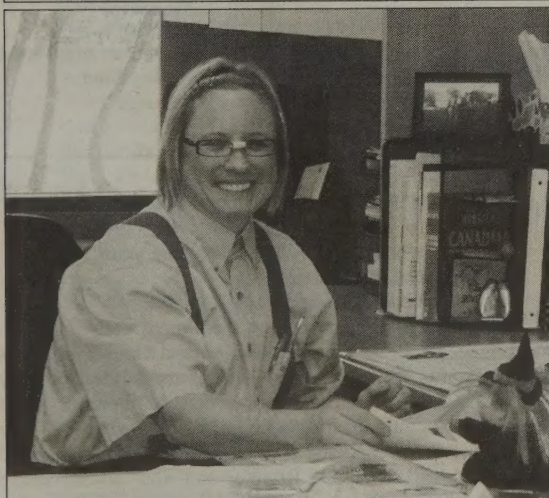

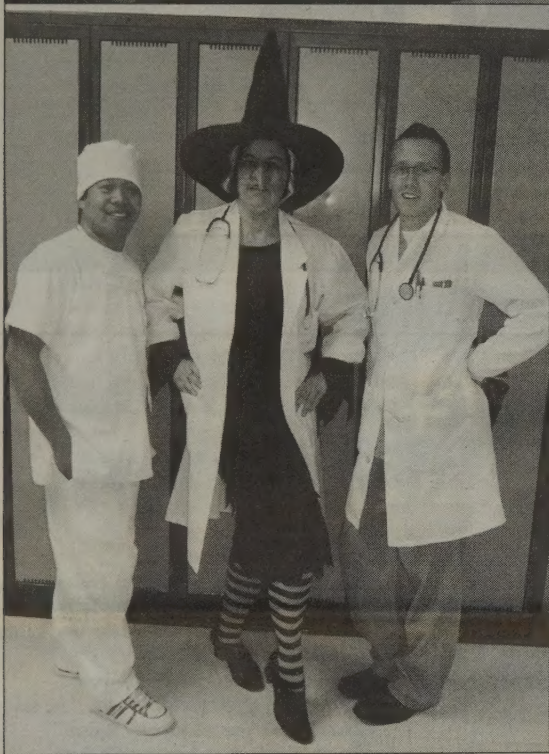

Christmas is right around the corner and that means that T.K's Toys for Tots is back. The school is collecting new or gently used stuffed animals until December 14. The PUP's are also considering making Holiday and Christmas cards again this year. If you are interested in purchasing some of these hand-made cards please contact either Sara Hochachka or Sherry Bower-Gagne at the school. All the proceeds will be going towards our Breakfast Program.

Lest we forget. Have a safe November and stay warm!

Wild times at FGM High!

October was quite a busy month for the F. G. Miller gang, with all sorts of interesting characters showing up for Halloween (top and left), jocks and geeks in the office (bottom left) as well as the classrooms, among many other activities. Now we have a brand new month, and even pretty young ladies are sporting moustaches as we embrace November.

On November 11, Canadians stand together to remember the sacrifice of so many great men and women in uniform. By wearing the poppy, we remember the hard work, dedication and courage of our heroes who have fought valiantly to protect our freedoms. Canada would not be the great nation that it is today if it were not for these brave individuals.

New ways to remember

The torch of Remembrance Day has been caught by younger hand, and although their methods may not be those of their elders, they do remember.

On Nov. 11, Facebook was filled with tributes to armed forces personnel past and present, some general in nature, some recounting family stories and remembrances.

Last week, the natural exuberance of elementary school students turned to respectful quiet as they paid tribute to servicemen and women of long ago.

Remembrance is in good hands.

YOUR VIEWS

Oil, business and remembrance

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF NOV. 13 IN...

1987

Murphy Oil told Elk Point Chamber of Commerce that the company plans to drill 30 new thermal wells and 14 new primary production wells in 1988 as well as a road leading to Bonnyville, which raised a question from chamber president Ed Buck, who felt the access should have connected to Highway 41 instead. A scuffle during an armed robbery at the Lucky Dollar store in Heinsburg left owner Rudolph Gregor, in his late eighties, bruised and battered, an event his daughter Alice said "you'd never dream of in a place like this."

1992

Sharon Smith of Home Town Grocers was proud to accept the 1992 Small Businessperson of the Year award, which she would share with husband Ron, from chamber of commerce president Millie Orr. Fort George and Buckingham House historic site commemorated the day that explorer Peter Fidler started his journey from the forts to southern Alberta with a visit from Fidler historian Bruce Haig who had published Fidler's diary, and who presented the site with a copy of his newest book, a collection of sketches by school children outlining events in the diary.

1997

The Region 4 Community Health Council gained insight into the Lakeland Regional Health Authority's injury control program, a combination of legislation, education and prevention regarding injuries resulting from everything from vehicle accidents to falls and self-inflicted injuries. The use of alcohol by teens was a concern for the Elk Point Interagency Committee, especially when it concerned the graduation party, a matter that would be addressed by RCMP Sgt. Peter Sherstan when he met with the F. G. Miller parent council and the Grade 12 parents.

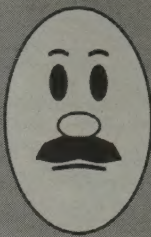

2002

A new generation took up the torch of remembrance as Elk Point Elementary's youngest students added their poppies to the Remembrance Day wreath during school observances, with Royal Canadian Legion members in attendance. Elk Point Chamber of Commerce finally had a place to call home and to store their files and documents, when Servus Credit Union offered the use of an office in their building.

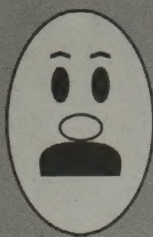

2007

Mementos of war decorated the stage at F. G. Miller High School, with each of 14 candles lighted during the Remembrance Day ceremonies representing the lives of 9,964 casualties "who fell victim to the harsh realities of war," Taylor Jenner told fellow students and guests. Frog Lake's fledgling Army Cadet corps also held a service of remembrance, where special guest and World War II veteran Lloyd Poitras did a Red River Jig in remembrance of his fallen comrades.

Changes

On Tuesday, November 6th, our American friends and neighbors went to the polls to vote. The results are interesting and will certainly be talked about in the days ahead. As Canadians, we can say congratulations and may what was promised be able to come to past.

Sunday, November 11th, was our Canadian "Remembrance Day" - a day set aside to honor sacrifice. On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, Canadians paused in memory of the thousands of men and women who sacrificed their lives in military service. In Elk Point this important moment was remembered in the Senior Centre after wreaths were laid beside the Elk Point Cenotaph.

Speaking of the political election taking place in the United States and Remembrance Day taking place throughout Canada as well as in Elk Point, I am reminded how both of these happenings reflect changes. In elections, even if the same political party won, they will be making changes after what they learned from their campaigning. Then with Remembrance Day reminding us of war, the sacrifices soldier, and families make, we are reminded that nothing goes back to the way it was.

Changes take place. There is an old poem with words written by Eugene Field that really describes how what once was is not the same today. The poem is called "Little Boy Blue".

from the FCSS desk

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and staunch he stands;
And the little toy soldier is red with rust
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,

And the soldier was passing fair,
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue Kissed them and put them there.
"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So toddling off to his trundle-bed
He dreamt of the pretty toys.
And as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue, -

Oh, the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true!
Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
waiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face.
And they wonder, as waiting these long years through,
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue
Since he kissed them and put them there.

Eugene Field wrote this poem around 1888 which was 35 years after the civil war. It was about the death of any child and the scattered toys in the room left behind. The child gave emotional life to his toys. Eugene wrote only children's poetry and the characters in his poetry all had emotional life. "Wynken, Blynken and Nod" and of course "The Duel" (The Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat) are two other famous poems.

Both the American election and Remembrance Day remind us about changes. The Little Boy Blue poem reminds us changes will occur just because of what takes place in our lives.

Bill 2 continues assault on landowners, says MLA

By JANANI WHITFIELD
Review Contributor

The government's assault on land rights is continuing with the introduction of Bill 2, which will take away landowners' means of appeal when their land is threatened by industry, according to Wildrose critics and MLA Shayne Saskiw.

"We see again that the government is ignoring the rights of landowners," said Saskiw. He felt this bill, which has passed second reading, continues the trend of Bills 19, 36 and 50 in treading on the rights of landowners. "We have to stand up for landowners — it's their land."

Bill 2, the Responsible Energy Development Act, aims to create a single regulator in the province to streamline approvals for coal, oil, gas and oilsands projects, which the Wildrose agrees is important in response to requests from industry.

However, the bill would eliminate legal provisions for landowners to be heard when an energy company wants to do something on private property or when industry issues, such as a pipeline leak, take place on private property, critics charge. Appeals used to go to the Environmental Appeal Board, an independent body, but now will be handled in-house by the regulator.

"The problem with that is that it's not a real appeal. It's the decision maker reviewing its own decision," Saskiw said, adding an independent body would add a "sober second thought" to important decisions affecting the environment and people's land.

Alberta Energy Minister Ken Hughes spoke to the Journal about the bill last Friday, saying that his family's background was in ranching, giving him a particular appreciation of the concerns of landowners in relation to industry.

"The goal is to create a process that is more effective and more efficient," he said of the bill. "But it also creates greater participation rights for landowners than existed previously." He said among the bill's provisions is that the regulator will be required to notify all landowners about development that directly and adversely affects them, and that it must also give public notice about development, which was previously not required.

As for concerns that people could not appeal to an independent body, he said that there will be a separation between those who make decisions and the commissioners who hear the appeals, and that the process should be as much or even more independent than what exists now.

Murder on the menu at pre-Christmas theatre nights

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The Elk Point Allied Arts Society is serving up a little murder with their Christmas celebration meals this year, with the first performance of 'A Little Murder Never Hurt Anybody,' scheduled for this Saturday evening.

Described as "A seasonal comedy with an air of mystery and a cast of six," this third annual opportunity "to host a Christmas party without cares or worries" is proving popular, society spokesman Don Conrad says, with ticket sales already up "about 300" from last year. "More companies are coming, and using this as their Christmas party."

The event is "a great night out, with a meal, a show and a dance," whether for a company, a group of friends or a couple, he adds, noting that some tickets are still available for all performances.

This year, a Sunday brunch, followed by the play, has been added to the lineup to accommodate the needs of patrons, Conrad says. "We had also planned a 'cheap night' with just the play and snacks, no dinner or dance, but nobody was interested. Everybody wants the meal."

Tickets are available at Elk Point Realty, (780) 724-4777 or from Conrad, (780) 724-3785.

Elk Point Elementary School students pay tribute in solemn ceremony

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point Elementary School students paid solemn tribute to the men and women who served Canada in two World Wars, the Korean conflict and peacekeeping missions with a program of poems, readings, videos and music on Friday, with representatives of the Royal Canadian Legion, the RCMP, the Town of Elk Point as their special guests.

Mistress of ceremonies Diane Dewan welcomed Legion representatives Del Smith and Roger Freeman, RCMP Cst. Nathan Fehr and Mayor Parrish Tung to the ceremonies, which she told the students was "a day to honour those who fought for this country," noting that more than 1.5 million Canadians have served in the military and more than 100,000 of those have died in the service of their country.

Three students explained the significance of three very important parts of the ceremony. Megan Adkins said the Last Post signals "the end of the military day," and in the Remembrance Day ceremony, "signifies that for those we remember, their duty is over and they can rest in peace."

Kaiden Evans Anderson said the customary two minutes of silence "pays homage to the courage and dedication" of those who "fought against tyranny and oppression."

Reveille, said Abby Baker, was the bugle call "used to wake the military at sunrise" and signals the end of the silent tribute.

The first video tribute of the afternoon urged all present to "See with your heart what (those who fought) saw with their eyes." It was followed by Tessa Pindroch, Mackenzie Evans and Andrew Richer reading a poem entitled "Do Not Take For Granted," written by a student from the Calgary area and a second place winner in the Legion Poppy Contest.

The second video of the afternoon, Aaron Lines song, "Somebody's Son", drew rapt attention from the audience.

The special guests then came forward to place wreaths in front of a cross adorning the gym wall, and were followed by pairs of students from each class, who solemnly added poppies to a large wreath hung on the cross and paused briefly in silent tribute, one young man adding a snappy salute.

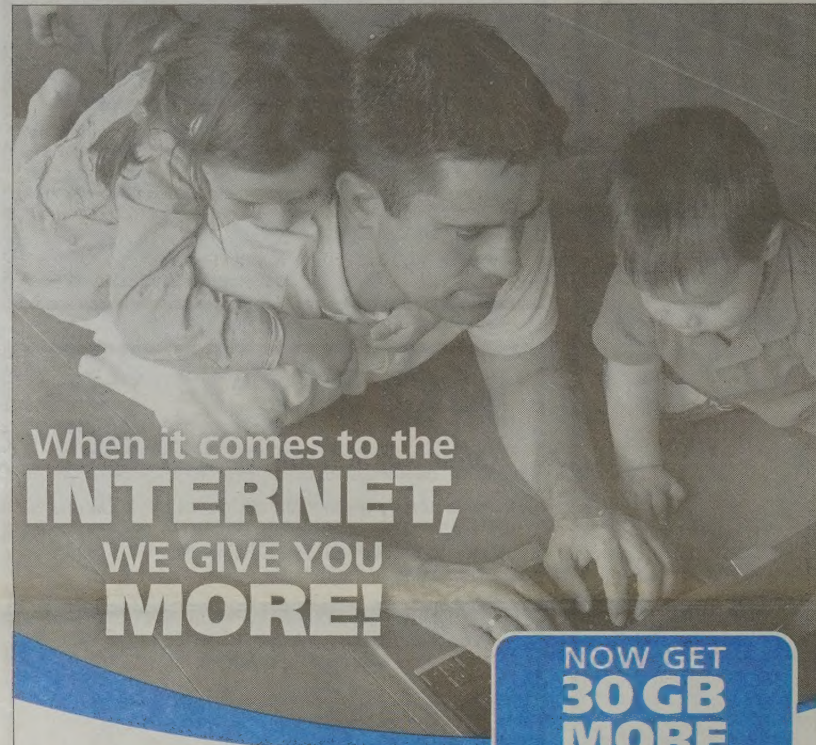

Music teacher Don Buryn accompanied the students in their first selection of the afternoon, "Peace Must Be Our Goal," before Sam Urquhart and Ashley Hunter read "Flowers of Remembrance," explaining the significance of the poppy and how it came to be the symbol of remembrance, with Buryn and the students continuing that theme with "Poppies Red."

Corbin Ockerman related the story of Lt. Col. John McCrae, noting that McCrae's classic poem, "In Flanders Fields," was based on an incident during his service in World War I, "when the larks were really flying overhead, and the poppies blooming" despite the battle raging on.

Catherine Nofthall, Garrett Kinaschuk and Parker Allen had the honour of reciting the well-known lines that are part of every Remembrance Day.

Buryn and the students offered a final song, "Make a Difference," with the students also joining in the chorus of the afternoon's last video, "Soldier" before Dewan gave her closing remarks, and ended the ceremony with the recitation of the Act of Remembrance, "At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, We will remember them. We will remember them."

Capsule Comments

- During the flu season, pharmacists often hear comments like "I'm pretty healthy, I don't need a flu shot." Flu shots protect not only you but the people around you, especially babies under the age of six months and older people with chronic diseases. There is safety in numbers because the more people that get their flu shots, the fewer will get the flu.
- It's early stages for researchers in Australia who are developing a micro motor, about the size of a grain of salt. It will be used in clearing up clots in blood vessels in the brain where surgery is unable to work. It promises to be extremely useful in navigating through the convoluted blood vessels in the brain.
- In 2011, 1803 organ transplants were performed in Canada. Over 4000 Canadians still wait for transplants, 75% of them for a kidney. In 2011, 195 Canadians died waiting for organ transplants. Are you an organ donor? If not, sign up today.
- About 8% of 8 year-olds still wet their beds at night occasionally. However, this problem doesn't usually signify a major problem and will usually resolve on its own. It can distress the child and sometimes simply restricting fluid intake at night will work. There are alarm systems available to remind the child to go to the bathroom at night. Medications are also available. Ask our pharmacists.
- Our pharmacists have access to solutions to many healthcare problems. We are always willing to talk to you and give you information to help you solve yours.

Novices, Peewees and Atom B see action

Watch out boys, these girls are out to take your jobs! Someday you might find yourself out playing street hockey in the cold, because these girls are not just here for fun, their ready to take over and one day maybe even play up in the NHL. The Novice Avalanche played at home on Saturday morning against Bonnyville and the five girls on the team were just awesome to watch. Jadey "the set-up Lady" with a goal and added four assists on her all-girl line mates. Two goals for line mate Avery "Whirlwind" Warawa, Lenae Peebles cashing in with one, the little birthday girl Rylee "the Rocket" Warawa lit up the candle with one as well. The second part of "the Sister Act." "Amazing Grace" Peebles did some amazing fore checking to force the turnovers.

OK, I must admit the boys played very darn well in this one too! Defense man Luke "Sky Walker" Poulin walking in with a hat trick, "Mick Jager" Fontaine doing a little dance was in there with a hat trick too, Dean "the Machine" Ockerman motoring in with one, and then for the grand finale, Odin "the Wall" Smith on a last minute rush that looked like a tidal wave was coming and no one was going to get in front off that, beat the clock scoring one in the last minute. He also assisted on a earlier goal. All fired up "Bazooka Joe" Cardinal standing a few guys up at the blue line, he's also on the score sheet with an assist. Brady Hymanyk just missing on a couple of one timers, Kobe Warawa was shut down on a breakaway or two, but otherwise was home free, and Vanden "Mario" Moroziuk winning all important face offs and setting up plays. Behind the mask, Josef Therault in the cage for this one was outstanding in his goaltending debut.

The Atom B Avalanche observed Remembrance Day on the ice up in Lac La Biche, where the referee blew the whistle just before 11 a.m., the audience stood and both teams lined up on the blue lines for the two minutes of silence. The game was very one-sided in LLB's favour on the score sheet, but the Avs remained competitive and are showing a huge amount of improvement since their novice days.

Hillmond, Sask. is the hometown of the unemployed NHL hockey player Wade Redden, who's wondering when he will be going back to work? He was at one time one of the top defenseman in the league, but last I heard he was in the minors but still collecting his NHL salary. Even so, I know he has done a lot of very good charity work in the Lloydminster area.

Our Peewee Avalanche team hosted Hillmond on Saturday afternoon, and after the first 20 minutes it looked like it was going to be a very close match. A two-all tie after the first period, on a goal by the smooth skating defenseman Nicholas Tucker and one by team captain "Awesome Alex" Hunter. The "Dominant" goaltender Darrian Rybchinsky was hoping to have another shutout; he has two previous ones this year; not this time, but after allowing the two goals in the first period he completely shut the door.

Thing started to heat up a little bit in the second period, the game getting a little more physical and the Avalanche taking not only the body, but a three goal lead. First year player Christian Castle-Wassan who is skating better and better in each game and has developed a real nose for parking in the right places, he scored his second goal of the season. Rugged rushing D-man Warren Ference going coast to coast; firing the cannon into the fort. The good old "Dust Pan Man" Dustyn Pankiw stood his ground in front of the net, he buried one into the twine. If you need someone to do a dirty job like getting into the corners or in front of the net and no one else will do it, call on the "Dust Pan Man" because he can!

The flood gates really opened up in the third with a flurry of goals, two more for the big blue liner with his nasty slap shot, Nicholas Tucker, who finished the game with a hat trick. Another goal for the brilliant playmaker "Awesome Alex" Hunter who also assisted on a few more. I should have called him the "Fortune Hunter" because if you stick around him for very long, good things happen, like the puck will end up on your stick. All you have to do is bang it home. The "Michelin Man" Parker Allen fired a knuckleball from the point that completely fooled the goaltender for his first of the year. Chad "Pick Pocket" Poiras who was stoned on three or four previous break away attempts, was determined to score in this one and on his final breakaway decided to use a back hander instead, it worked, putting the puck right up on the top shelf where mom keeps the cookies. Brody the "Big O" Odgaard who is likely the most versatile player on the team was called upon to play a number of positions in this one, some shifts on forward, some on defense, he socked one away too. The only place the "Big O" didn't play was between the pipes, but he sure helps out his little buddy the "Dominant" along with his partner the unsung hero Corbin "Crusher" Ockerman, the big stay a home defenseman, never scores a lot of goals but goes about his business week in and week out. And it's not just him out there busting his butt, there's also Kaiden "K Rock" Evans - Anderson, its same old story, he never sees any glory!

Sorry guys! Last week paper when we listed all the players from the Elk Point minor hockey system playing Junior B we missed Jared Vallee who logged a lot time in our farm system and Tyler Bunce, who now lives in Elk Point. Mark it down on your calendars; you won't want to miss this one, the St. Paul Canadiens vs. the Vermilion Tiger right in at the AGR, Friday November 30 at 8pm.

And now for the K.A.Campbell quote of the week: "Some people skate to the puck. I skate to where the puck is going to be." Last week's answer to: "People talk about skating, puck handling and shooting, but the whole sport is angles and caroms, forgetting the straight direction the puck is going, calculating where it will be directed, and factoring in all the interruptions. Basically, my whole game is angles." Wayne Gretzky.

Buck the old holiday tradition this season

Can't find the coveted hippopotamus? How about a caribou, instead?

BY THE NATURE CONSERVANCY OF CANADA
Review Contributor

Tired of the same ill-fitting gifts? The busy malls and the race for that last parking spot? Want your gifts to stand out this year? Then leave the mall behind and give a gift from the heart. Here are a few ideas to get you started!

Make your gifts: From food to handmade wares, your personal effort and care in creating a personal gift will show friends and family that you're really thinking of them. Put together a photo memory book, knit or sew hats and mitts, or give out your home canning -- pickles and jams. Wherever your talent lies, you're sure to be able to make something to please everyone this year.

Offer your services: Not everyone has a lot of money to spend at Christmas. From pet sitting and child minding to car washing and house cleaning, you can offer your friends and family some relaxing time off with your gift of help.

Professionals can offer valuable services too, from free haircuts to tax returns to home repairs. Your friends and family will appreciate your gift of help long after the holidays are over.

Throw a party: Instead of giving gifts, host a party at your house for your closest friends. Complete with a three or, if you're daring, five course meal, the time and effort you put into planning a fun and festive night out for your friends will be a gift they will appreciate for the time spent with you. Include a photo booth to capture the event.

Give them an experience: Take your loved ones out to dinner, to the opera, to the spa, or on an adventure. Spending quality time with solove or trying something new is a fantastic way to show you care and will create memories that last a lifetime.

Give a charitable gift: This year, buck the old tradition and buy a Gift of Canadian Nature from the Nature Conservancy of Canada. After all, nothing says 'best gift ever' like a caribou!

Gifts of Canadian Nature help protect habitat for Canada's native wildlife. A Gift of Canadian Nature lasts for years to come and is a gift that gives thrice! Once to the recipient with a personalized certificate and a beautiful calendar, once to the giver with a charitable tax receipt, and once to Canadian wildlife.

Saskiw took issue with the way the issue was being handled, noting that MLAs were sitting through midnight, looking through more than a hundred pages of legislation. PC MLAs do not even speak to the bill in legislature, and are whipped into voting it through, he said.

"It's a terrible way of doing legislation," he said. Saskiw felt that the bill should be put to an all-party committee that could get feedback from stakeholders on all sides of the issue, including industry, landowners and environmental groups to come up with the appropriate amendments and "get the legislation right instead of ramming it through."

"This is how these bad land bills came about and I don't think they've learned their lesson," he said of the Progressive Conservative government.

"There's been more than two years of consultation on this already," Hughes countered, noting that industry makes tens of billions of dollars in investments in the province yearly, and it was necessary to have a "reliable, predictable regulatory process" that still upholds environmental protections.

"We need to get this moving because this is really important."

However, the three opposition parties have all expressed problems with the bill as it stands, with the Wildrose bringing 12 amendments forth and the NDP proposing eight amendments to the bill, that has now gone to committee for review.

Scrappin' fun with the Kids' Club

Scrapbooking and card making is a new take on after-school fun for kids in the Elk Point area, under the expert guidance of scrapbooking instructor Daleen Pinder (centre, above), who runs the classes with assistance from other crafty enthusiasts, such as Darcy Evans (right). Last week's class had the young scrappers enthusiastically working on Halloween scrapbook pages, and stamping, folding, punching and assembling some one-of-a-kind birthday and Christmas cards in the art room at Elk Point Elementary School.

We're listening for ideas.
